

Trapped In His Skin

A budding young boy wanders the school,
Footsteps patter to the beat of his heart.
His classmates snicker and act too cruel,
He wonders why life has fallen apart.

He is a night owl consoled by the dark.
An angry lizard with scaly disease,
A birch tree with flaking layers of bark,
A shape-shifting chameleon at unease.

Countless creams and oils provide no cure,
His bright life's fabric tearing at its seams.
While he longs to be center stage, brave and sure,
A teen superhero awaiting his dreams.

One day he says, "In the sun I feel better."
This epiphany brings light therapy.
He transforms from an active volcano,
To a sea of shining tranquility.

He smiles at me,
The trapped bird is free.

Ami Saraiya

Correspondence to Ami Saraiya MD, Department of Dermatology, Tufts Medical Center, 800 Washington St. Boston, MA 02111, USA; asaraiya@tuftsmedicalcenter.org

Competing interests None.

Provenance and peer review Not commissioned; internally peer reviewed.

CrossMark

To cite Saraiya A. Med Humanit 2015;41:e10.

Med Humanit 2015;41:e10. doi:10.1136/medhum-2014-010651