

Bedside manner

Then there came a time
when my body was set free by the lost memory
of my mother's loving eyes,
my body set free
to glide high riding
impossibly silent
flowing snowy slopes,
my body set free
to slide skinny
slip-stream strokes through black and frigid crater lakes.
Set free by a memory
or was it just wishful thinking
and not a lost memory at all,
not lost like the riding and sliding.

So now here I lie convinced that I am ready to die,
quivering butterfly wings
pinned to crisp white linens.
Here you come now
to my side,
a newborn's cry
meeting mother
eye-to-eye.
What is this gift that you ask of precious me
like a beggar
kneeling beside my bed
holding my hand
you say
I love you and I will stay here with you.

Michael J. Passmore

Correspondence to Geriatric Psychiatry, University of British Columbia, c/o Mount St. Joseph Hospital, 3080 Prince Edward St, Vancouver, BC, V5T 3N4, Canada; mpassmore@providencehealth.bc.ca

Competing interests None

Provenance and peer review Not commissioned; internally peer reviewed.

CrossMark

To cite Passmore MJ. Med Humanit 2017;43:e26.

Published Online First 27 April 2017

Med Humanit 2017;43:e26. doi:10.1136/medhum-2017-011232