Contents

Editorials
1 Bearing witness to people who refuse to be fragmented by illness D Kirklin
2 Studying the historical role of food in health and in war: a case of undernourishment? E Mayhew
3 Borderlands: a historian’s perspective on medical humanities in the US and the UK H J Cook

Original articles
5 Portraits of care: medical research through portraiture V A Aita, W M Lydiatt, M A Gilbert
6 Historical and contemporary perspectives on children’s diets: is choice always in the patients’ best interest? G Denny, P Sundvall, S J Thornton, J Reinarz, A N Williams
10 Duke Ferdinand: patient or possessed? The reflection of contemporary medical discourse in John Webster’s The Duchess of Malfi E Tullo
14 Death and Doctor Hornbook by Robert Burns: a view from medical history M Nicolson
18 Thrills, spills and pills: Bond, Beresford and the pharmacology of peace S Goodman
23 Contemporary Japanese view of life and death as depicted in the film Departures (Okonobi) A Aita, M Fukuyama, Y Kobayashi
27 Narratives of melancholy: a humanities approach to depression D Flynn
31 Thrills, spills and pills: Bond, Beresford and the pharmacology of peace S Goodman
36 Wearing someone else’s shoes K Rae
40 Introducing spirituality, religion and culture curricula in the psychiatry residency programme J Kassik, L Baynash, J Bowley, E Bay

Student original article
52 Nutrition in warfare: a retrospective evaluation of undernourishment in RAF prisoners of war during World War II T Tharakan

Current controversy
57 A cell phone and a Chinese curse G J Ventura

Educational case study
58 Fearlessly exploring the other: the role of drama in medical training K S Matharu, J Howell, F T Fitzgerald

PostScript
60 Book reviews
62 Film reviews

Miscellanea
18 Memory S Nghiaza
26 What’s in a name? M Rogers
30 Sodden S Nghiaza
35 ‘Horrible, most horrible’: Hamlet and forensic medicine T D Ruder, G M Hatch, M J Thali
42 From night number two: code blue T S Rubin
51 Wondrous world T Brunson